Undergraduate Program Philosophy

Community

   Students majoring in public health and program faculty and staff are a family that cares about every member.

Organizing Principles and Their Priorities

1. Students learn how to think, learn how to learn, learn how to communicate, and learn how to work in teams.
2. We use public health and its integrated content to do #1 but may not interfere with #1 in doing so.
3. Students graduate, are employable/admittable, and are employed/admitted because of #1 and perhaps #2 but achieving these outcomes may not interfere with either #1 or #2.
4. Instructors’ preferences or focuses on their disciplines may not interfere with any of #1, #2, or #3.
5. Students and instructors must work to avoid having their egos, biases, personal beliefs, and ambitions interfere with any of #1, #2, #3, or #4.
